Autumn's arrived, and with it we bring you a new issue. This time, you'll find we've made some changes. This is because we wanted to devote a lot of space to a single theme, without spreading it out over several months and so making it easier to grasp. The theme we have chosen is the Spanish Civil War, a period of great importance for subsequent events throughout the world. Its importance lies in the fact that during this war, new tactics and weapons were tried out and used which were later to cause havoc worldwide. We have tried to give you a general panorama of the war, discussing military matters and often their political aspects that had such importance for the final consequences of the conflict. We hope you will enjoy it, it has involved great efforts by a lot of people.

Additionally, you will also find the second part of the article on Phyrus, in which we deal with the episodes of his command until his death, and the always welcome article on novelties.

We do hope you will find this issue interesting. As you know, this magazine is a joint effort made by everyone, so don't hesitate to get in touch with us if you have any ideas for its improvement, or for an article you'd like to write ...

All the best to you all!
